This is a detailed floor plan of a building, likely a residential or institutional structure, showing a complex arrangement of rooms and corridors. The plan is oriented with a diagonal line running from the top right towards the center, possibly representing a boundary or a specific architectural feature. The rooms are numbered, and the layout includes several stairwells and a central corridor system. The plan is divided into several main sections, with rooms of varying sizes and shapes. A large, dark-shaded rectangular area is visible in the lower right quadrant, possibly indicating a specific room or a structural element. The overall layout is intricate, with many small rooms and a central open space.
